"Iron Duke" Wins From McCarthy by Staging Great Battle of Nerve in Morning Match.

MINNEAPOLIS VET BEATS CHAMPION

Cary Sees Turning Point in Bob's Game After Morning Round, Afternoon Match Easy.

BY WHITNER CARY.

Minneapolis, Aug. 24.—The reduction of George Von Elm, the 1926 champion, from a leading contender for the 1927 title to a mere spectator and the near reducing of Robert Tyre Jones to the same impasse state were the two outstanding chapters that were written over the Minneapolis course during the first day of match play in this, the fastest amateur championship in the 31-year history of the event.

Harry Legg, a local product and a former champion of this state on no less than 10 occasions, had the honor of removing the red knight of the Pacific by the count of one up in their second round match, while Maurice McCarthy, who hails from old Flat-bush, and writes Long Island champion after his name, came close to making the name of McCarthy immortal by eliminating Bobby Jones in the very first round.

This most dangerous assault was nipped by Bobby by the narrow margin of a two-up victory, while a second assault, staged in the afternoon by that other crack youngster, from the east—Eugene Homann—was also halted, Bobby emerging at the long end of a three and two score. By these victories Bobby made his entry into the third round. Thursday he meets Minnesota's boldest bid—Harrison Johnston—in a 36-hole encounter.

Close Call. But while Bobby got over that first hurdle, it was as close a call as the Atlanta experienced last year in the first round at Baltusrol, when young Dick Jones took him to the 18th hole before offering congratulations. In fact, so close was the call today that when Mr. McCarthy and his illustrious opponent stood on the 10th tee and gazed down that long fairway lined with countless thousands of spectators, who now seem a part of the terrain whenever the Iron Duke is in action, immortality for the McCarthy clan looked highly promising.

This state of affairs existed because of two reasons. First: Because Bobby, during the first nine holes had exhibited a brand of golf far below his normal high standard, and second, because Mr. McCarthy was shooting the works against his famous adversary. All of this resulted in McCarthy being one-up on Bobby, when they stood on that 10th tee.

Whenever Bobby Jones meets an opponent that opponent realizes that he has all to gain and nothing to lose. As a result that opponent sits loose with his all and if by chance he is going good, dire consequences are in store for Bobby.

Pair of Bobbies. But in beating Bobby Jones there is a dual combination to defeat. One is Bobby Jones—the golfer, the other is Bobby Jones—the fighter. That second round of the qualifying match and part of his second round match today exhibited Bobby Jones the fighter, that first round encounter against young McCarthy produced Bobby Jones—the fighter.

For it was nerve, cool collected nerve, plus a fighting heart and that intangible quality defined as class that pulled the Iron Duke through the heated fires of that terrible ordeal today.

His words can desert him, his iron can play him false and his putter can become a traitor, but that something in the soul of Bobby, be it steel or iron, will never forsake its owner. It has proved its allegiance time and again, but never in as potent and bold manner as in the concluding lap.

ACREE REDUCED IN POLICE FEE PROBE HEARING

Former Lieutenant and Chief of Vice Squad Will Get Beat as Patrolman, Committee Decides.

Lieutenant E. S. Acree, head of the Atlanta vice squad, Wednesday night was reduced to ranks following conviction on charges of receiving money for booking liquor and gambling cases, as the first move in a sweeping reorganization of the department under orders of the police committee of city council.

The former head of the "wrecking crew," as the squad was called, will be assigned to a beat and placed in uniform in accordance with the ruling of the committee.

More than a score of witnesses were examined in the most exhaustive hearing held by the committee this year, as the committee delved into what turned out to be a system of rewarding informers by paying $2 for liquor cases and $1 each for gambling cases.

Acree admitted under close cross-examination by Alderman Charles Murphy, of the 12th ward and chairman of the committee, that he had never informed Chief of Police James L. Jett, Sheriff James I. Lowry, who paid the rewards; Chief of Police James L. Beavers, Chief Police, W. J. Stephens, Councilman W. Garland Cooper, of the 10th ward and member of the 1926 police committee of council; Walter McNair, deputy sheriff; Dan Goodlin, member of former Solicitor Roy Dyer's staff, who was present during officer of the city criminal court; and many others.

$1,852 Paid. Testimony adduced at the trial purported to show that $1,852 had been paid to Acree and his men for distribution to informers so far this year, but records showed that only $1,104 worth of cases have been booked so far this year. The discrepancy of $748 was explained by the defense, which was conducted by Attorney W. Paul.

Start of Brunswick-to-Rio Non-Stop Airplane Trip Is Timed for Noon. World Record Sought.

550 GALLONS GAS CARRIED IN TANKS

Georgia Aviator To Attempt 4,600-Mile Trip That Will Carry Him Over Land and Sea.

Brunswick, Ga., August 24.—(P)—Receipt of favorable weather reports brought definite announcement late today that Paul Redfern would take off tomorrow morning, "probably around noon," on his proposed non-stop flight to Brazil if conditions continue propitious.

In making the announcement, Paul V. Varner, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the flights, told newspapermen to "be on the scene at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning," adding that the take-off would be made probably about noon so as to take advantage of low tide for a longer runway on the beach.

With armed guards barring the way of spectators seeking admittance to the Glynn Isle hangar housing Redfern's monoplane "Port of Brunswick," the young aviator personally supervised the filling of the plane's 550-gallon capacity gasoline tanks and directed other final preparations for the 4,600 mile flight.

With him were Varner and Redfern's young wife, who displayed intense interest in the last minute goings on. "Only bad weather or a cross wind on the beach, so far as I can see now, will prevent me from taking off in the morning," Redfern declared, his elation at the prospect of a start after several delays being easily apparent.

Once he gets off Redfern hopes to set the world endurance and distance record before he lands. After the tanks of the huge Stinson-Douglas were filled with gasoline and oil, the safety apparatus was packed carefully in case of any emergency that might arise on the long flight that will take him over sea and jungle before he reaches Rio de Janeiro, the objective for which he will set out.

The after-dinner hour had filled the lobby and gave the tired-looking president a good round of applause as he entered, carrying part of his fishing equipment. He smiled wearily in return.

Sam Woodring, chief of the rangers, who fished with Mr. Coolidge, said the president expressed himself as having "the time of his life."

MEXICANS SHOOT CALIFORNIA GIRL

Washington, August 24.—(AP)—Mexican bandits "seriously wounded" Miss Florence Anderson, an American, in an attack yesterday on a train 15 kilometers south of Acapulco, Mexico, the state department was advised today by J. Winsor Ives, vice consul at Mazatlan.

Miss Anderson was the only American injured out of a party of 11, though Ives placed the number of dead and wounded at 15.

Several hundred men participated in the holdup, which started at 4 a. m. and more than 40 shots were fired, Ives reported. After the attack the train proceeded to Mazatlan and Miss Anderson was taken to a hospital.

A wound was found upon her left side and an operation was deemed necessary. No advice has been received as to its outcome.

Ives said Miss Anderson was returning to Los Angeles from Mexico City, where she had attended summer lectures at the Mexican national university.

He advised the state department that he had made vigorous representations to the governor and military authorities of the state of Nayarit, in which the attack occurred. The department is understood to be awaiting more detailed information as to the attack and the steps Mexican authorities have taken to apprehend and punish the bandits, before deciding upon a course of action. If negligence in the pursuit and prosecution of the guilty becomes apparent, it is expected that representations to the Mexico City government through diplomatic channels will be added to those already made by Ives. Pending word to the contrary, however, the Washington government will assume that the Mexican authorities are taking appropriate steps.

reach Rio de Janeiro with an extra hour's supply of fuel in the tanks. Should he encounter unfavorable winds, however, he will turn to Pernambuco, several hundred miles nearer. His decision regarding this, however, will be made at Macapa, on the north bank of the Amazon river.

Throughout the day the aviator's camp was one of activity. This morning Redfern went aloft for an hour and a half, carrying J. J. B. Fulenwider, official starter for the flight and his nautical advisor, as his companion. The Brazil flight, however, will be a solo one.

Food for the aviator was prepared during the afternoon at the Redfern cottage at St. Simons island.

Redfern must take off when the tide is sufficiently low to leave a wide expanse of beach for a runway. Low tide comes at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, but the aviator has said he could get his plane off the ground two hours before or after lowest tide.

If Redfern takes off at noon he will have a runway at least 300 feet wide and extending for five miles. He does not anticipate any difficulty in getting his plane with its maximum load weight of nearly 6,000 pounds off the ground under such conditions.

Milkman Finds Bomb; Cops Find It Bowling Ball

(By Leased Wire to the Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.) New York, August 24.—Of the finding of bombs there is no end. Daniel Tanzer, a milk wagon driver, was going about his business today when, outside an apartment at 240 West Tenth street, what should he find but a large round object. It looked like one of those things the cartoonist pictures with a black-headed anarchist behind it. Tanzer jumped as though the price of milk had been raised.

Very cautiously, thinking intently of bomb plots, he went to the ash can where the object reposed. Almost imperceptibly he fished out the round object—six inches in diameter, painted a mottled yellow, rather heavy and with a "plugged-up hole" in its side. Looking for soft places in the street, Tanzer drove to the Charles street station and eased his find in.

Detective Allen placed the round yellow object in a pail of water. That's the first thing to do with a bomb. It sank. That, obviously, meant it was a bad sort of bomb. The bomb squad and the fire department bureau of combustibles were notified and hurried over.

Detectives Melin and McCartney, of the bomb squad, got there first. They fished out the bomb and scrutinized it carefully.

It was a bowling ball. The plugged-up hole was the indentation in which the bowler puts his thumb.

been made on this point, Mrs. Dyal, young bride of the slain man, declaring that her husband was not armed. Mrs. A. H. Nunn, who viewed the tragedy from the porch of her home near where the affair occurred, stated that she did not see Dyal with a pistol.

Aycock has claimed self-defense and is supported in his testimony by Captain J. W. Kemp, a special officer of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, who was with Aycock at the time of meeting the Dyal on the road and during the shooting. Sheriff J. O. Mattox has in his possession a pistol which he says Aycock claims that Dyal flourished when the officer approached the Dyal car yesterday near Jesup.

Other statements are to the effect that the pistol is a rusty affair found on the floor of the car.

Aycock and Kemp today were placed in the Wayne county jail here, charged with murder, but no date for the preliminary hearing has yet been set, chiefly because of the opinion of Wayne county officials that the safest course to pursue is to wait until feeling has subsided. Much excitement prevails in Baxley, McRae and other surrounding towns because of the prominence of the principals, Ernest Dyal being the son of the late Forrest Dyal, prominent landowner and a brother of J. D. Dyal, wealthy turpentine operator.

Denies Husband Armed. Mrs. Dyal, who was prostrated at the shooting, was reported much better today, but had added nothing to her statement that her husband was not armed. Mrs. Dyal, a bride of two months, was formerly Miss Ruth Finlayson, of Cheraw, S. C., a daughter of B. Finlayson, a merchant of that place.

Operator at McRae. Mrs. Dyal was shot three times by Chief Aycock. The shooting occurred a few miles out of Jesup, on the highway, as Dyal and his bride of two months were driving their automobile from St. Simons island. They were en route to their home in McRae and were turning into the main highway from a detour when the car containing the county officer and Captain Kemp drove up. The Dyls were ordered to stop and the shooting occurred.

Chief Aycock is alleged to have fired first through the back of the car, the bullet going through Dyal's back, piercing his lung. After getting on the running board of the car Chief Aycock fired a second and third times. The second bullet is believed to have caused the death of Dyal, it having "wrecked his jugular vein."

Chief Aycock claims he fired in self-defense. He alleged Dyal drew a pistol on him and he fired to protect himself. After the shooting Chief Aycock took the body of Dyal to Jesup. He made no effort to avoid arrest, and soon after the shooting he was taken into custody.

Used Left Hand. Dyal was driving the automobile, and he had to use his left hand in this operation, as his right hand was disabled. A witness to the shooting of Ernest Dyal by Chief Aycock, who will be one of the chief witnesses of the state in the trial, stated to officers that Chief Aycock fired three times at the dead man, and she saw no gun in the hand of Dyal.

The witness is Mrs. A. H. Nunn, who was sitting on her porch about 50 feet away from the scene of the shooting. Mrs. Nunn stated she could not hear the talking, but she saw Chief Aycock get upon the running board of the Dyal car, get down again and fire three times. The shooting was in rapid succession. She said she did not see Dyal with a weapon.

Mrs. J. D. Turner, sister of Mrs. Nunn, was with her at the time, but

Liner Is Severely Rocked By Mystery Sea Agitation

Submarine Disturbance or Monster? Passengers Ask

New York, August 24.—(United News)—Submarine disturbance or a sea monster, something tilted the great French liner France at a violent angle in a calm sea just outside New York harbor, and the 880 passengers who landed Wednesday pointed to their bruises and speculated freely as to the marine mystery.

Veteran seamen and officers on the liner were at loss to explain the unprecedented occurrence. The terrifying happening took place at 11 p. m. between Ambrose lightship and Fire Island, in a breathless calm. Most of the passengers were in the main saloon, hearing a concert on their last night aboard.

Jean Borotra, French tennis star, en route here for the Davis cup matches, was taking a lonely stroll on the topmost deck. Without warning and apparently without cause the liner suddenly listed far to port. Then as though a silent but powerful push had been withdrawn, the France swished back and listed even more acutely to starboard. Then for several moments on the calm sea it rocked violently.

Borotra was thrown to the deck so violently he skinned his left hand. Passengers who had retired were flung from their bunks among their baggage. They rushed on deck to join the frightened outpouring from the concert saloon.

Captain Marius Aubert, commander of the France, ordered the soundings, which had just shown the liner to be in deep water, to be retaken. They showed the vessel to be still in deep water.

"The ship rocked from side to side in calm water 12 times," Aubert said later. "I have been at sea for 40 years and I never experienced anything like it. I have no explanations to offer."

Passengers who favored the sea monster theory pointed out that in the fairly populous waters off Fire Island no other vessels reported unusual disturbances. Against this it was declared that no known sea demon was big enough to do such things to a liner.

BYRD AND FRENCH MINISTER FORCED DOWN BY STORM

Buffalo, N. Y., August 24.—(AP)—High winds, apparently the tail end of a hurricane that has whipped the eastern seaboard for two days, tonight forced Maurice B. Bokanowski, French minister of commerce, industries and aviation, and Commander Richard E. Byrd to abandon an air trip from New York to Toronto. They decided to remain here overnight.

The Ford-Stout tri-motor airplane carrying the French minister and his American aviator host landed at the Buffalo airport after having been nearly an hour overdue on its hop from Ithaca, N. Y., where fuel was taken aboard at 7 o'clock.

LIFE OF A CRACKSMAN

Bill Jones, 60, Expert Jail Breaker, Tells of Experience.

Bill Jones, expert cracksmen, who made his seventh break from prison about two weeks ago when he took "French leave" from the state farm at Milledgeville, grew talkative in Fulton tower Wednesday, where he was brought after his capture near Dallas, Ga., the day before.

Bill is more than 60 years old and has learned a good deal of prison life in his time.

Discussing, among other things, the report at the prison farm following the escape that a "trustee" assigned to guard the steel cage in which the three men were confined had been drugged, Jones said, "We had all the ingredients necessary for making tea and he got in the habit of drinking it with us. He took some the night we escaped. Somebody may have played a mean trick on him and slipped a little sleeping powder in with his sugar. But, of course, if such a thing happened, I didn't know anything about it."

Roy Wilson, lifer, and M. Markowitz, serving a sentence for forgery, escaped with Jones and are still at large.

Fire Is Extinguished.

A sprinkler system on the third floor of the Byrd Printing company, 46 West Alabama street, next door to Atlanta fire department headquarters, late Wednesday night probably saved a big loss by fire to the structure. The origin of the fire was undetermined, but was quickly extinguished with little damage, according to fire reports.

TOUGHER OIL

Buy these better products where you see this sign. It marks a dependable place to trade. For every Pan-Am dealer is a merchant of proved reliability.

TODAY'S high-speed motors demand special care in your choice of lubricating oil. They perform better, but they develop a terrific heat that soon breaks down many oils. Then friction does its damage to exposed metal . . . and up go the repair bills.

Hit-or-miss oil buying will not protect your motor effectively!

But you take no chances when you fill your crankcase with the improved Pan-Am motor oil. This tougher oil is made from a paraffin base crude. It holds its body in spite of heat and friction. Thus it adheres to cylinder walls and bearings; making lubrication certain. Yet because it lasts much longer, this tougher oil actually costs you less than doubtful kinds.

FLAG WAR GREET WALKER IN BERLIN

BY GEORGE SELDES.

(Copyright 1927, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
Berlin, August 24.—Major James Walker's political tempest reached new heights today when the association of leading hotels decided to ignore the German republic by refusing to fly the national flag during the mayor's stay and refusing to accede to Mr. Walker's request that the German republican emblem fly alongside the American flag at tomorrow night's banquet. Today the whole count is commenting on this war between the hotels and the Berlin municipal government.

Yesterday the hotel men promised the American club, of which Ambassador Jacob Gould Schurman is honorary president, that the hotels would accede to the American request to show the republican flag. But today all the owners and managers of the biggest hotels at a meeting decided not to fly the new banner because their established clientele would object. The city administration immediately declared that all officials must boycott such hotels.

The league of republican newspapers likewise published a call for a boycott and it is expected that the republican organizations throughout the country will take up the issue. Thus, the war between the monarchists and republicans has been revived by Mr. Walker's arrival.

The German journalists had a fine time interviewing Mr. Walker today. In their best English, they questioned him as follows:

"What think you about prohibition, Herr Walker?"

"What do you think about prohibition?" countered the mayor.

"We Germans are against prohibition."

"Well, I am normal and human, too," replied his honor.

"That is a very diplomatic answer, Herr Mayor."

"Well, sometimes, I am not diplomatic, so let that lay."

"Is der yotz musik dead in America?" (Yotz musik is German for jazz, someone interpreted.)

"Did you ever hear jazz?" shot back Mr. Walker.

"Yes."

"Well, that is your answer."

When Mr. Walker went to see Burgomaster Boess at midday some communists in the city hall hissed and yelled: "Revenge for Sacco and Vanzetti!"

"Glad to meet you," said the mayor, extending his hand to the hisser, who shook hands and suddenly yelled "hoch Burgomaster Walker!"

Mr. Walker told Herr Boess he hoped the burgomaster would attend tomorrow's banquet. Herr Boess replied he would if the monarchistic hotel men displayed the republican flag. He asked Mayor Walker what the Americans would do if someone refused to show the American flag. Mr. Walker's reply was appropriate.

ROCKDALE FARMERS VISIT FARM COLLEGE

COVINGTON, Ga., August 24.—(Special.)—On Monday 55 Rockdale county farmers in company with County Agent G. C. Daniel made a trip to the college of agriculture at Athens. The purpose of the trip was to give the party a chance to see what the college is doing for the farmers of the state and to interest Rockdale farmers in alfalfa growing and dairying. Those attending came away enthused and with a vision of better things.

This was the second trip of the year. The first delegation numbered 122 farmers and business men and was sponsored by the business men of Covington and G. C. Daniel, county agent.

Georgia Press Association Members Enjoy Barbecue At Eatonton and Visit Early Home of "Uncle Remus"

Eatonton put on its best "bib and tucker" to entertain editors of Georgia newspapers who are meeting there this week. Picture in upper left shows a scene at the barbecue given Tuesday. Left to right are Mrs. Evelyn Harris and Preston Arkwright, of Atlanta, Ernest Camp, of Monroe, president of the association, and J. J. Pelley, president of the Central of Georgia railroad. In center Corinne Shell, attractive Eatonton lass, is filling the stein with, we will say, lemonade, for Sam B. Eskew, printer for Joel Chandler Harris when he lived at Turnwood, near Eatonton. Upper right shows Miss Emily Woodward, editor of Vienna News, who Wednesday was elected president of the Georgia Press association. She is the first woman to be named president of the organization in its life of 41 years. Lower left shows home at Phoenix community near Eatonton, where Joel Chandler Harris lived as a youth. In the lower right is depicted "Brer Rabbit" (Ann Subbs) listening intently to the "Little Boy," Louis Turner Griffith, grandson of the "Little Boy," famous in Uncle Remus stories, while "Brer Fox" (Rufelynn Batchelor) also listens in. The Uncle Remus characters took part in a Joel Chandler Harris prologue at the banquet at Eatonton Wednesday night.

CLEARWATER HERALD TO CEASE PUBLICATION

Clearwater, Fla., August 24.—(AP)—The Clearwater Herald, a morning newspaper, will suspend publication with tomorrow morning's issue, it was announced today by Arthur W. Jordan, a local attorney, who today purchased the newspaper plant at a trustee's sale.

Jordan also announced that The Herald will be consolidated with the Clearwater Sun, an afternoon newspaper, owned by Paul Pointer.

Miss Emily Woodward, of Vienna, Is Elected President—Sutlive and Stanley Trophies Given.

Eatonton, Ga., August 24.—(AP)—Statesboro was chosen as the 1928 convention city of the Georgia Press association here today in annual meeting, and the W. G. Sutlive trophy, awarded yearly to the Georgia newspaper which has performed the most outstanding public service, was awarded the Albany Herald. Pelham made a hard fight for next year's meeting, but was defeated by the Albany Herald. Besides Miss Emily Woodward, of the Vienna News, who was elected president, other officers elected were Louis D. Morris, of the Hartwell Sun, vice president; H. M. Stanley, of the Albany Herald, secretary; C. E. Bins, of the Butler Herald, recording secretary; and J. J. Howell, of the Culbert Leader, treasurer.

The Stanley trophy, awarded for the first time this year, went to the Dalton Citizen for having the neatest paper in appearance that is published in the state.

The Sutlive trophy was awarded to the Herald for their outstanding work in fire prevention during the past year, which caused the Albany fire department to be awarded the fire-prevention prize for the entire United States by the United States chamber of commerce. In awarding the trophy, Mr. Sutlive, editor of the Savannah Press, also pointed to the great work that the Herald had accomplished in their anti-bill weevil campaign.

Tonight the editors and their wives attended a dinner given by the Kiwanis club, and also a play in honor of Joel Chandler Harris, author of "Uncle Remus" stories.

The election of Miss Woodward is the first time a woman has ever been elected president of the association in all its 41 years of existence. She is one of the most prominent women in Georgia. Miss Woodward succeeds Ernest Camp as president.

Features of the program today included a barbecue at noon when 500 guests were served at the banquet tonight given by the Eatonton Kiwanis club. Dr. Y. H. Tallaferrro presided at the banquet.

An interesting feature of the banquet was a prologue which was in the nature of an "Uncle Remus" present, in which characters made famous by Joel Chandler Harris were represented. The decorations and favors at the banquet carried out the "Uncle Remus" idea.

The banquet practically ended the convention at Eatonton and early Thursday morning the editors will leave for Milledgeville where they will spend the day, after which they will proceed to Tallulah Falls, via Atlanta.

COVINGTON ENTERTAINS PRESS PARTY.

Covington, Ga., August 24.—(Special.)—About 25 members of the Georgia Press association were entertained by the Covington Kiwanis club Monday afternoon; between trains while en route to Eatonton to attend the 41st press convention, which is being held there this week.

Mayor A. S. Hopkins extended a welcome to the visitors in behalf of the city and S. Charles Candler for Kiwanis. Response was made by John Paschal, of The Atlanta Journal. Sandwiches and drinks were served in the park by Mrs. Rayford Pennington, Misses Margaret Hester, Louise Fowler and Julia Muse, after which an automobile drive was given to points of interest, including Bibb Manufacturing company, at Porterdale; Emory University academy, at Oxford; Covington mills and the Betty Lunsford golf links.

TO VISIT SCENE OF ORGANIZATION.

Milledgeville, Ga., August 24.—(AP)—When the members of the Georgia Press association arrive here tomorrow to be the guests of the Baldwin county Union Recorder, they will be assembled in the old building in the same room where the organization was founded 41 years ago.

The association was founded here August 30, 1887, and it was largely through the efforts of the late Jere N. Moore, father of the present editor of the Union Recorder, that the organization was organized. Moore, editor of the Union Recorder, and his son, Jere N. Moore, managing editor of the paper, will welcome the association in behalf of the Milledgeville press.

P. T. McCutcheon, editor of the Franklin News and Banner and who is the only charter member of the organization, having attended the first session here, will deliver the main address of the day. Mr. McCutcheon will outline the growth of the association.

The visitors will be entertained at a barbecue to be given by the staff at the state sanitarium and then will be taken on a tour of the state institutions here.

WILLIS MURDER TRIAL OPENS IN GREENVILLE TODAY

Greenville, S. C., August 24.—(AP)—With the defense keeping silent about its plans, the trial of Mrs. Ethel Willis and Henry S. Townsend, charged with the murder of the former's husband, Sheriff Sam D. Willis, will be called in circuit court here tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

State's attorneys today reiterated their assertion that they were ready to go into the trial.

Whether the defendants will be locked up after their trial begins is a matter for the court to decide. They have been at liberty on bonds of $2,000 each since the first of July, when they obtained their freedom on habeas corpus proceedings.

Airplane's Roar Turns on Lights At Landing Field

Pittsburgh, Pa., August 24.—(Special.)—A formidable enemy of night flying—the unilluminated landing field—was conquered automatically by the modern wizardry of electricity at Bettis field, McKeesport, last night. At a public demonstration there the lights of a plane, 1,000 feet in the air, closed a switch on the landing field. A bank of airport floodlights were turned on, and an instant later the pilot was gliding safely along a path of illumination that was called into being by the voice of his own plane. Thousands witnessed the successful exhibition of the sound-sensitive automatic lighting agency developed by T. Spooner, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Merle Moltrun, chief of the air mail pilots at Bettis field, made the landing which opens a new volume in the annals of aviation.

HEARING HELD ON PLAN TO HARNESS POTOMAC RIVER

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., August 24.—(AP)—A proposal for harnessing the Potomac river to obtain hydroelectric power for Washington, Baltimore and other points in Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia drew praise and condemnation today at a public hearing held here.

Opponents of the proposal contended that a storage dam for the power plant would inundate hundreds of acres of valuable farm land, scores of cemeteries, and would destroy the beauty of park lands at Great Falls, above Washington.

Advocates of the project held that the power development would mean cheap electricity and would stimulate prosperity within the area. They declared there was no intention of making a factory of the capital city, and took issue with those who said the scenic beauty of the river would be destroyed.

The hearing was conducted by Major Brehon Somervell, army engineer in charge of the Washington district. An official hearing on the proposal is scheduled tomorrow in Washington.

SLOOP GOES AROUND IN SEVENTY-MILE GALE

Chatham, Mass., August 24.—(United News.)—Caught in a 70-mile northeast gale, the Provincetown fishing sloop, Mildred Agnes, went aground on a bar off here this afternoon.

Captain William O'Neil and nine men were aboard the 55-foot craft, which was being battered by the heavy seas.

Coast guards from Old Harbor station succeeded in hoarding the sloop but the captain and crew declined to go ashore.

S. C. REQUISITION FOR SIX REFUSED

After hearing testimony in an application for extradition papers signed by the governor of South Carolina, requesting that six men charged with shooting a game warden on the South Carolina bank of the Savannah river, opposite Screven county, Georgia, be returned to that state for trial, John Wilson, secretary to Governor L. G. Hardman, Wednesday declined to honor the requisition.

Mr. Wilson was delegated to hear the case by Governor Hardman. He looked up the law on the subject and found that where the crime is committed on Georgia soil in the case of assault with attempt to murder it is not an extraditable affair. The shot which struck the game warden was fired from the Georgia side of the river, according to the testimony offered in the case. Mr. Wilson said the men could be tried in Screven county, Georgia on this charge, but could not be taken to Hampton county, South Carolina to stand trial.

The men accused of the shooting were Chauncey Daley, Roy Daley, Davis Evans and Willie Allman and Earle Walker. It was charged that they shot from ambush at J. Herman Ziegler, game warden of Hampton county, and seriously wounded him.

At the hearing the attorneys for the accused men claimed an alibi, declaring that the men were with the shooting were not in the crowd at the point where the shooting occurred. The alibi plea was not considered by Wilson, who declared that the Georgia law set forth clearly that this was not an extraditable offense, regardless of the guilt or innocence of the men. The state of Georgia was represented by Randolph Muriel, solicitor of the fourth district. The men were represented by Attorneys H. A. Boykin and E. H. Overstreet, of Savannah.

3 KILLED DURING ZAGLOUL PASHA RITES IN EGYPT

Cairo, Egypt, August 24.—(AP)—Three spectators were killed in the fall of a balcony and many heat prostrations occurred during the procession today that was part of the funeral ceremonies for Zagloul Pasha, nationalist leader and president of the Egyptian chamber of deputies, who died yesterday.

Thousands along the line of march witnessed the procession that lasted for one hour and 20 minutes. Representatives of the labor syndicates, with many bands, led the mourning march, while governmental groups were followed by military units. A group of 200 officers preceded the coffin which was borne on a gun carriage covered with a silken Egyptian flag. About 4,000 official mourners followed, then the body of Free Masons and mounted police.

The last farewells to the Egyptian statesman were said at the Imman-Yahfe mosque.

No more colorful act has been seen on an Atlanta stage in a long time than that of Paulo & Paquita on the Pantages' bill at the Capitol theater this week. Paulo & Paquita are Spanish dancers, doing all the traditional dances of Spain as well as the fiery tango of the Argentine with a dash and grace rarely seen in a vaudeville attraction. They are assisted in their act by Chikita, a Catalonian girl of rare beauty and a talented vocalist and pianist.

This week is "fun week" at Loew's Grand theater where two resourceful comedians, Dave Kramer and Jack Boyle, head the vaudeville bill, and where the riotously funny farce "Adam and Evil" is the screen attraction. ### Howard.

"The Way of All Flesh." Emil Jennings' first American-made picture, is playing to capacity houses this week at the Howard theater. This picture has been acclaimed by critics far and wide as one of the really big productions of the year. Its heart emotion and the acting of the superb Jennings will thrill you from the first reel to the very last fadeout. On the stage this week is "In Jazland," the first of the greater Public presentations.

Metropolitan.

Based on Clarence Buddington Kellogg's story of the same title, "Dance Magic," at the Metropolitan theater this week, is a vivacious picture of a girl's quiet life in New England. Enrico Leide and the Metropolitan orchestra, a Mack Sennett comedy and the Metropolitan News are other features.

With a master stroke of good fortune, the management of the Metropolitan theater will usher in "Greater Movie Season" next week with Corinne Griffith in "Three Hours," one of the most genuinely triumphant photoplays of the present years.

Rialto.

"Nevada," a Zane Grey western with a new twist and a lot of action, not to speak of a portion of the usual stirring melodrama and a touch of comedy which have made Grey pictures the most consistent drawing cards in the history of motion pictures, is at the Rialto theater this week.

"Ice Cold Cocoon" is the name of the comedy on the program with "Nevada." It is a Mark Sennett production. That Manager Murray insists, is sufficient recommendation for its laugh-producing qualities.

Ponce de Leon.

Douglas Fairbanks, rollicking romantic figure of the screen, is seen today and tomorrow at the Ponce de Leon theater in "The Mark of Zorro," one of the most popular pictures that this star has ever made. It concerns a dashing cavalier who is a scourge on all the unjust and oppressive of the countryside, leaving his famous "Mark of Zorro" on the victim's forehead.

Tenth Street.

For the first time in her screen career Bebe Daniels will be seen in the guise of a dashing caballero of South America when her latest Paramount picture, "Senorita" comes to Tenth Street today and tomorrow. Not only does Miss Daniels assume masculine disguise in this romantic comedy-drama of a girl who masquerades as a boy, but she com-

West End.

William Haines and Sally O'Neill head the cast in "Slide Kelly Slide," a story of a major-league club which is playing at the West End theater today and tomorrow. The cast of "Slide Kelly Slide" is a notable one including famous players of the screen in the person of Harry Carey and Karl Dane.

DeKalb.

In the hilarious baseball comedy, "Casey at the Bat," which makes its bow at the DeKalb theater today, Wallace Beery signs a contract to play baseball for the old New York Giants and almost wrecks the tire league with his escapades. Hailed as a "find" Beery, a small town junk dealer enters the "big league." So potent does the redoubtable Irishman become that he soon emerges as the Babe Ruth of 1890.

Palace.

An amusement pier, a country club, a Broadway cabaret and then—the prize fight of the century! You see all four and lots more in Clara Bow's riot of fun—"Rough House Rosie," which is playing today and tomorrow at the Palace theater. The picture the dynamic Clara has hit the big again.

Madison.

Lon Chaney, veteran character actor, to be seen today and tomorrow in "The Trap" at the Madison theater in East Atlanta. Chaney is more than especially capable in crook roles, and in "The Trap" he is seen at his best. He is supported by an excellent cast of stars.

Tudor.

"California or Bust," starring George O'Hara, which is now being shown in the Tudor, is the latest thing in speed theater, showing O'Hara as a young inventor with lots of ideas and more nerve, who has the time of his young life displaying the speed of his new invention.

It is a Mark Sennett production. That Manager Murray insists, is sufficient recommendation for its laugh-producing qualities.

Fairfax.

Norma Talmadge in "Smiling Through" is playing at the Fairfax today and tomorrow, rising to a new height in stardom. The story filled with pathos and romance and a picturesque background, offers Norma an ideal vehicle for her talents. "Smiling Through" is a long-favored play and its screen adaptation has proved equally as popular.

THEATER PATRONS RIOT AS MOVIE "INSULTS THE IRISH"

New York, August 24.—(AP)—Police reserve called out tonight to quiet a disturbance created by a crowd of 420 street theater near Eighth avenue when a number of patrons arose and denounced as "an insult to the Irish" a film that was being shown. Threats to wreck the theater and destroy the film were made while other patrons rushed for the exits and a crowd gathered on the sidewalks. A squad of police quickly restored order and dispersed the crowd.

The film was entitled "The Callahan and Murphys."

Heath, of Sumter, S. C., and Mrs. C. H. Mason; three sons, E. B. Howell, Jr., St. Paul, Minn.; Dr. H. B. Howell, of New Orleans, La., and D. H. Howell, of Flushing, N. Y., and two nephews, Albert Howell, Jr., and Clark Howell, Sr.

Albert Howell, Sr., at the outbreak of the war between the states enlisted in the service of the Confederacy and one of his most notable acts was during the famous battle of Atlanta, fought on July 22, 1864, when he was captain of company A, of the first Georgia regiment. Captain Howell carried on after his senior commander had been killed in action.

He found on the person of his dead commander a note directing him to take command and he did to this day his feet have long been recognized as one of the bravest deeds of the great struggle fought in Atlanta's vicinity. During that memorable battle Captain Howell, with the aid of his comrades, is said to have captured 87 prisoners.

A few days after that battle in recognition of his wonderful leadership Captain Howell was commissioned a colonel. Colonel Howell, Sr., next younger brother of the late Captain Evan P. Howell, and a son of the late Judge Clark Howell, one of the pioneers of Atlanta and Fulton county, was born in 1842, and hence was 84 years of age.

He had been identified with Atlanta ever since his young childhood and was engaged in business before the civil war. He entered the service and served through the war and was promoted to the field of the battle of Atlanta, July 22, 1864, to the colony of his regiment.

After the war, with his brother, William H. Howell, he organized the wholesale grocery firm of Howell Brothers, and upon its dissolution several years later removed to Augusta, returning after a few years to accept the position of union ticket agent of the city of Atlanta.

Colonel Howell was born February 13, 1842, in a little village in Georgia known as Lebanon Mills. Albert was the second son of the late Judge Clark Howell, and his mother was Miss Effie Park, daughter of Dr. Columbus Park, a wealthy and representative citizen of Greensboro, Ga. When Albert was about ten years of age, Judge Howell moved to Atlanta and purchased a large tract of land in the Chattahoochee river section and the Howell Mill road takes its name from his home and a mill operated by him. In those days the wealthy planters moved into the city in order that their children might receive the benefit of school and have the opportunity to select some trade or profession.

What is now the site of the Candler building was then occupied by Professor Packard's school for boys, and here Albert Howell was a pupil. At 16 years of age, having been the first in the organization of the Georgia City guards, he became second corporal of that company, and with them he was mustered into the first Georgia regiment assembled at Macon, Ga., for active service in the then fast brewing civil war.

His brilliant military record, from 1861-1865, a matter of history, and the young corporal who entered the war in his teens, was twice brevetted on the field for personal gallantry and at the close of the momentous struggle was colonel of his regiment. The few survivors of that historic command still thrill with enthusiasm in recounting the incident.

In the Battle of Atlanta, when a courier brought word to Captain Albert Howell that Colonel Brown had been killed, and he was to take command of the regiment. At the time his men were lying on the ground under withering fire from an entrenched battery of the enemy, but Colonel friends he finally announced as candidate for the office of mayor, but was defeated by a very small majority. At this time he purchased the northeast corner of Currier and Peachtree streets, where he lived, with his family for a number of years; but becoming interested in the milling business at Augusta, Ga., removed with his family to that city for three or four years. That business not proving the success he had been led to expect, he sold out his interests and returned to Atlanta, the home he has always loved and where he spent, with this brief exception, his long and busy life.

Prior to suffering a stroke of paralysis a few years ago, which disabled him, Colonel Howell was actively employed in the work of road building for Fulton county. To the time of his death he was confined to his home at 1013 Gordon street in West End, where his loyal and devoted wife, widowed daughter and loving grandchild ministered to his comfort.

WORKERS URGE SPEEDY START ON CITY HALL

Necessity for an immediate start on at least one of the major projects contemplated under the municipal bond issue was emphasized by the Atlanta Federation of Trades at its semi-monthly meeting Wednesday night. J. Sid Tiller, president of the federation, expressed agreement with the recent expression of Frank Neely, chairman of the bond commission, that work on the new city hall should begin in not more than 30 days.

It was declared that improvement in the employment situation would be one of the immediate results of starting bond project operations, with corresponding benefit to general business conditions. The executive committee of the central trades body has been co-operating with the bond commission in ironing out difficulties that have hitherto hampered the actual beginning of construction work.

Elaborate plans for the celebration of Labor day on September 5 were announced as practically completed, the program including a mammoth parade of laborers during the morning and a program of athletic and entertainment events at Grant park in the afternoon.

SACCO-VANZETTI FUNERAL PLANNED

BY CECIL OWEN.
 Boston, August 24.—(United News.)—Through the streets of Boston the bodies of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti will be borne Sunday afternoon in one of the largest funeral processions this city has ever seen.

Permission was obtained from the department of health late today to hold the funeral Sunday, although a city ordinance which requires burial within four days after death threatened for a time to interfere with the plans.

Attempts by the defense committee to rent a hall where the bodies could lie in state until Sunday failed so far as the city authorities were concerned.

No Hall.
 Failing to obtain a hall by tomorrow morning the defense forces will have the bodies removed to the undertakers parlors of Joseph A. Langone in the teeming north end, and they will be on view there.

Hundreds of sympathizers are expected to follow the caskets in the procession Sunday, but the defense committee has said that it will not apply for a permit as required by law where there are more than 200 mourners.

CANDLER AIR FIELD CONFLICT AVERTED

No controversy between the city of Atlanta and the city of Hapeville regarding the jurisdiction of the city of Atlanta over the Candler aviation field will arise, it was discovered Wednesday when Governor I. G. Hardman announced that he had signed the omnibus charter bill of the city of Atlanta, which gives the city of Atlanta clear authority over this field. In fact, the clause relative to the aviation field expressly states that the city of Atlanta shall have jurisdiction over this field even if it should lie within the city limits of any other Fulton county municipality.

Earlier in the session a bill was passed which gave the city of Hapeville the right to extend its city limits to include Candler field and several large industries located in that section. Under the terms of this bill it was thought that the Hapeville authorities would have jurisdiction over the field but the charter bill for Atlanta was passed later in the session and expressly stipulated that the city of Atlanta should exercise jurisdiction over this field.

The omnibus charter bill gave the city the right to purchase and own a municipal landing field and an amendment passed on the last night of the session gave the city police jurisdiction over the field, no matter if it were located within the boundaries of some other Fulton county city.

Did Not Represent Clerks' Brotherhood, T. J. Stowe Declares

Declaring that published reports of an address he made at a demonstration last Sunday in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, at the Atlanta Labor temple, has misinterpreted his intention, T. J. Stowe, chairman of the meeting, Wednesday asked The Constitution to correct the "error."

During his address Mr. Stowe declared he represented himself as an official representative of the workers' party and said he felt sure that he had the backing, though no official authorization, of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. Reports were that he indicated he represented the clerks.

WIFE ASKS ASSISTANCE IN LOCATING HUSBAND

Police were requested Wednesday to locate Mr. A. Hardy, 31, of 755 Cooper street, who left home last Thursday and has not been seen since by his wife. Hardy is described as five feet, five inches tall, weighing 200 pounds, with fair complexion and light hair. He is said to have an Indian head tattooed on his arm.

Former Atlantan Writes of Arabian Travel in New Book

Bringing with him adventures and mysteries from Asia, W. B. Seabrook, formerly of Atlanta, well-known newspaper writer and advertising man, has returned to his native land and inscribed his thrilling personal experiences in a volume of "Adventures in Arabia." The book is just off the press and has already shown signs of success in New York.

Mr. Seabrook is another son of Georgia on his way to fame. For many years he was in the newspaper field in Atlanta, later entering the advertising business with the opening of the Lewis and Seabrook firm, which is now in the hands of Frank Coffee. Some years ago Mr. Seabrook moved to New York, where he did syndicate writing. In Atlanta he married Miss Kate Edmondson, daughter of John L. Edmondson, of the Coca-Cola company.

His sojourn in Arabia, which has resulted in this volume of adventures, was but the climax of Mr. Seabrook's wanderings in other lands. Shortly after completing college he was struck by the wanderlust, and made his way across the Atlantic in a cattle ship. Then he tramped from Cherbourg to southern France, where he first saw a flesh and blood Arab. The mystic personalities of these easterners captivated the adventurous soul of young Seabrook and by bribing the lamp boy on a trading vessel he found himself sailing towards the land of Islam. But he was discovered before he ever reached the desired goal and that venture came to an abrupt ending.

Thenceforth the dreams of Araby were always with him. A chance acquaintance in Bohemia, New York, made possible the realization of these dreams without the expenditure usually required. His acquaintance was the son of a Druse historian, through whom he acquired the friendship of the most powerful sheiks of Arabia. The result was a long visit there, where he was received not as a foreigner with governmental sanction but as a friend of powerful tribal leaders and "in the face of Allah." In this way he saw and experienced much that the usual traveler in Arabia never encounters, and has preserved his adventures for posterity in his new book, "Adventures in Arabia."

TO BEGIN RAZING OLD GIRLS' HIGH WITHIN 2 WEEKS

Razing of the old Girls' High school building at Washington and Mitchell streets will be begun within the next two weeks to make way for the new city hall, under the direction of William A. Hansell, chief of construction, it was announced Wednesday.

Bids for demolition of the structures will be asked at the next regular meeting of city council, August 5. It is estimated that from a month to six weeks will be required to wreck the structures.

In the meantime work of perfecting details incident to erection of the $1,000,000 municipal building will be pushed by the special city hall committee of council, which is headed by Councilman Wylie L. Moore, of the seventh ward, and Frank Neely, chairman of the Atlanta bond commission.

BESSIE KEMPTON TO RUN IN 1928 FOR LEGISLATURE

Miss Bessie Kempton, representative from Fulton county in the legislature and the only woman member of that body, will be a candidate for reelection to this post in 1928, she announced to friends Wednesday.

"I am influenced in this decision by many friends who have insisted that I can render, in the legislature, my greatest service to the people of Fulton county and the city of Atlanta. In my next campaign I shall run solely on my record in the legislature during the last several years. I feel that my experience in regular and extraordinary sessions of the legislature in the last five years, in which questions of taxation and tax reform have been paramount issues, enables me to truly and faithfully represent the people of Fulton county, who pay approximately 75 per cent of the taxes of the entire state."

Miss Kempton is serving her third term in the legislature. She was one of the first women in the south to become a member of the state legislative body. During the first session Mrs. Viola Ross Napier, of Bibb county, was also a member of the legislature but she was not reelected. Miss Kempton has been elected to the legislature three times.

AVONDALE MEASURE HEARD BY GOVERNOR

Arguments for and against the approval of a local bill passed by the legislature providing for the incorporation of Avondale Estates as a separate municipality were submitted to Governor I. G. Hardman Wednesday. The governor will announce his decision in the case Thursday when he receives an opinion from Assistant Attorney General T. R. Gress, who attended the hearing at the request of the governor.

One of the delegations was composed of citizens of Avondale who supported the bill, while opposition to the bill was expressed by Representative Paul Lindsey, of DeKalb county, and J. O. Wood, Atlanta attorney. The Avondale citizens were represented by former Governor Clifford Walker and G. F. Willis, developer. Mr. Lindsey spoke against approval of the bill.

It was contended by Mr. Lindsey that the senate had promised him a hearing on the measure and had failed to give it to him. He had previously signed the bill as introduced in the legislature but said he had been misinformed as to its status and that later he opposed its passage. The bill has a referendum clause which submits the whole matter to the people of Avondale for approval or rejection this clause being added in the senate. After looking up precedents in the case and hearing the testimony, Assistant Attorney General Gress declared Wednesday that he was inclined to the opinion that the bill should be signed by the governor. He stated, however, that he will not render a formal opinion in the case until Thursday.

LET REDFERN BLAZE THE TRAIL.

If the weather conditions make it necessary to further defer the Redfern non-stop flight from Brunswick to Rio de Janeiro, scheduled for today—and certainly it should not be attempted unless perfect conditions prevail—then the Brunswick committee having the same in charge will serve a real, constructive purpose in the advancement of trans-Atlantic commercial aviation if it will call that proposed expedition off at once, and substitute for it an immediate trial trip over the proposed southern route from Los Angeles to the coast of Spain.

This proposed route, which will avoid icy fogs and winds and snow and sleet storms, even in winter, was first proposed by Henderson Hallman, aviation leader of Atlanta, and is sweeping the entire nation with enthusiasm.

Newspapers in almost every city are discussing it with favor, and the Los Angeles Express has recently devoted almost a page to it, with strong editorial endorsement.

The Constitution first saw the merit of the proposal, published an illustration of the proposed route, and then other newspapers of the nation quickly joined in the procession of favorable thought. Even the government has taken it up, and has proposed—if such is desired—to send an accompanying ship with the pilot who makes the trial trip.

The proposed southern route to Europe will practically eliminate hazards. Hopping off from either Savannah or Brunswick the first stop would be made in Bermuda, the second in the Azores, and the third and final at a chosen port on the Spanish coast. It is almost a direct line, as the eagle flies.

From the coast of Spain air lines can radiate of course all over the continent of Europe, touching all the nations and capitals.

Paul Redfern is a dauntless, intrepid, able young aviator. The ship "Port of Brunswick" is perhaps the last letter in monoplane construction. It is capable of doing anything, with Redfern in command, that is reasonable. If any aviator can make the Rio flight—4,600 miles in a non-stop—Redfern can do it in his Stinson ship. But at this season of the year it is entirely too full of hazard to undertake. The tropical storm season is practically on, and storms can and do appear almost out of a clear sky in the Caribbean, and off Turkey Island.

Then why brave such an undertaking when no good purpose can be served except "good will," and that has already been accomplished by the "world good will tour?"

Redfern can blaze the air trail of the proposed southern America-European route, going and coming. He can then prove the year-around feasibility of the American leg of the journey by making the trip from Brunswick to Los Angeles and return.

The entire route can then be officially charted and proclaimed by the governments of the United States and Spain—and the feasibility of commercial aviation the year around from the Pacific coast across the Atlantic will have been established.

The northern route across the Atlantic is impracticable in winter. The icy fogs, and the snow and sleet would bring any machine down.

The northern route across this continent is hazardous, as the Rocky mountains are a great deal higher than along the southern route, and the different climatic conditions must necessarily favor the southern route.

This is merely a friendly suggestion to the Brunswick committee. It has shown such a marvelous spirit of enterprise in promoting the Redfern expedition that we would like to see it turned into useful account, and divorced from the hazards of the southern waters during the hurricane season.

With the great accomplishment of establishing the entire practicality of a commercial trans-Atlantic air route to his credit, and to the credit of the Brunswick committee, then Redfern can, in the late spring of 1928, when there are clear skies, and practically no storms to the south, make the proposed Brazilian trip, if so desired.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENTS

The newspaper fraternity throughout the nation will be gratified that Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, has definitely denied having assailed the corps of Washington correspondents, and having advocated federal censorship.

When the news dispatches—reporting an address of the Virginia senator at the institute of public affairs, which was conducted at the University of Virginia—stated that Senator Glass had made such statements we felt sure that there had been a misinterpretation of his remarks. Feeling such to be the case we refrained from any comment. We have, therefore, been waiting for the Virginia senator, who is also a publisher, to clear up the matter, and felt sure he would do so. In a letter addressed to Richard B. Olanahan, dean of the Washington correspondents, Senator Glass, with an explanation of what he did and did not say in his address, says:

"I did not imagine that there was a newspaper in the country, much less in Washington, where I have spent 25 years in public life, that was credulous enough to suppose that I could have been preposterous enough to advocate 'severe restrictions' or 'censorship' of the news in the face of the constitutional guaranty of freedom of the press. As a newspaper publisher myself, and as a man of ordinary good sense, I did not come in a thousand miles of even thinking, much less suggesting such a thing."

That settles it, and again justifies our high regard for the good sense, sound judgment, and careful expression of the Virginia senator.

There are many so-called "Washington correspondents" who are not accredited. That is to say, they hold governmental appointments of one kind or another, and "correspond" for their rural home papers, or perhaps a string of them. But there is no more able, more dependable, more ethical corps of newspaper writers and commentators in the world than that made up of the accredited Washington correspondents—those who are members of the galleries, and of the National and Gridiron clubs. Most of them are "staff men," sent to Washington by the larger newspapers for editorial desks, and chosen for the even greater responsibilities by reason of their great ability, and absolute reliability.

MISS WOODWARD HONORED.
The Georgia Press association is to be congratulated upon the election of Miss Emily Woodward, editor of the Vienna News, to the presidency.

It is the first time in the history of the organization that a woman has occupied this position of honor and responsibility, but Miss Woodward deserves it by regular succession, and again by her constant, faithful and resourceful interests in the organization.

She ran the gamut of the vice presidencies before her rightful elevation to this higher honor. Miss Woodward, who conducts the only newspaper in the home city of Senator Walter F. George, and of President Dykes of the state senate, is not only one of the outstanding weekly editors in the south, but she is deeply interested in woman's club work in the state, and as deeply interested in all civic, economic and political affairs.

She is a clear thinker, a virile writer, and is sound in judgment. She is progressive and has been a great asset to the development of her community along all constructive lines.

She will make an ideal president of the Press association, which honors her by carrying with it a great deal of public service.

TO BE COMMENDED.
Governor Hardman is to be commended for determining not to call the Georgia assembly into an extra session.

The treasury deficit that is visible is comparatively small and can be carried without any curtailment of appropriations becoming necessary. It is gratifying also that he will sign the Wilcox 4-cent a gallon gasoline tax bill.

This measure does not increase the gasoline tax. It merely allocates all of the tax to highway uses, whereas heretofore the tax of 4 cents a gallon was differentiated so that 3 1-2 cents went to highway uses, and 1-2 cent to the expense of maintaining a vast army of oil inspectors—which fortunately has been eliminated—the residue going into the general fund.

The fear of its unconstitutionality because of a slight error in the bill's caption has been dissipated by the attorney general's department.

Wonder if President Coolidge's choice not to run was influenced to any degree by the closeup political view of the wild, wild west.

It is now urged that cities and towns display their names to the fliers' view. Pretty soon sign boards with their advertisements will be facing upwards.

I RECKON SO

BY T. H. ALEXANDER.

A TRUE HISTORY OF THE SOUTH
(Copyright in all languages including the Scandinavian.)

(Note: So much criticism has been heaped on the various untrue histories of the south that Captain Squirt, the professional southerner, has attempted a history which, in hopes of passing inspection of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals and the Manufacturers' Record.)

Chapter I.
It is a little known fact that the south was discovered in 1491 when the rest of the country was discovered in 1492. Always ahead is our motto.

It seems that Christopher Columbus was standing on the prow of his flagship, the Pinta, one afternoon in October, 1491. He had made the voyage in the Santa Maria, but this ship somehow like the name of a Catholic saint, and Columbus did not wish to offend the king who was to rise in later years, he moved his bed and room to the Pinta, a beam-like ship.

"Land, ho," said the lookout. "That she blows."

"Vat," said Columbus, "yo, yo, what is it?"

It must be observed at this point that Columbus, who has now been made a saint by the Catholic church, has been discovered by the Scottish people. Thus he spoke to the lookout in the language of Milt Gross.

"You heard me the first time," said the lookout in a surly manner. "You heard me the first time, most in mutiny at the long voyage and not being able to get any koshier food or make any money, there being no Gentiles."

"It was indeed the south that Columbus had discovered on the memorable day. He was about to land at Tybee, Ga., when he called his secretary and asked about the price of cotton.

"My lord," said his secretary with a blush, for women actually blushed in those days, "fair to middling is quoted at 10 cents per pound."

"The dirty robbers on the New York stock exchange," said Columbus, "the crooked crop report, everything wrong with the market, I shall see such a day. What! Make history on the very day that cotton has gone off $15 per bale? Not by the beard of Queen Victoria, I swear."

With that Columbus ordered his men to turn back to Spain!

A year later in October, 1492, Columbus returned and formally discovered the south first! That is true history.

Chapter II.
It is stated in most histories that George Washington, who was the correspondent in the divorce of the colonies from England, died of a cold in his chest. Of course, he was recognized as a gross libel on the climate of the south. It was originated by New England historians, who were cruel and envious, and their climate is so cold and rigorous. Many a time a New England historian has written a whole chapter with his ink frozen and his hand blue from cold.

On the day that he died Mr. Washington was talking with the great-grandfather of Augustus Hughes, who had jokingly remarked that he intended to give out Mr. Washington's receipt for making hot toddy. Mr. Hughes said: "I don't know where Wayne B. Wheeler or the Anti-Saloon league told him: 'Hop to it.'"

While thus indulging in these pleasant reflections, Mr. Washington's cook, Sally Lunn, entered with a new concoction which she called "Washington's receipt." It was a bread pudding and a brick bat. The Father of His Country ate heartily of this dish and in a few minutes passed away peacefully. He did not even have cold in his chest. The misery was elsewhere.

Chapter III.
Had Henry Ford been at Richmond in the civil war he would not have said that history is all bunk. Back in the sixties when Ford began to try to get out a new model, he was delayed because all the Ford dealers got tired of waiting and sided with the army. There was a cold breeze from General Sheridan down the Shenandoah valley.

Using a model T instead of a horse, as is alleged in the incorrect southern history, General Ford, accompanied by Barbara Fleischmann, whose picture you have seen in the recent advertisements, made the non-stop journey in four hours. Thus (Editor's note: Is this the same girl who was all run down just a year ago?)

His note was: Yes, and she had comedones, halitosis and dandruff. (Editor's note: You don't say!) (Author's note: Yes, she did.) Just about the time she was going, General Sheridan's car broke the radius rod. It also developed, as usual, that the carbon needed cleaning. The engine had never been overhauled. The transmission was all shot, the oil pump was not working and the radiator leaked.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Georgia Press Association Is Having a Royal Time in Eatonton.

Here in "good old Putnam" the fourth estate of Georgia is holding an annual carnival amid the lavish hospitality of a people famous for their culture, thrift and friendly habits. It is the forty-first celebration of the formation of the Georgia Press Association, the directors of the press of the state into a mutual alliance of interest and sentiments germane to their important and distinguished profession.

The association has maintained a high level of ability and progressive spirit and, perhaps, given no stronger evidence of its devotion to the best ideals of journalism and its public service mission than in the past year under the leadership of Ernest Camp, genius of the able Walton Tribune.

The men and women who make up the personnel of the assembly of editors and publishers now here in Eatonton cannot be overmatched in any state of the nation. I am fairly acquainted with the rank and file of newspaperdom in America, and with no desire to be super-patriotic or flatter myself, I can say that the Georgia Press association is as blue ribbon a body of editorial instructors and community uplifters as can be met with anywhere on the continent.

Not many of them, of course, are Bennets, or Creeleys, or Wattersons, or Grays, for their time is a marked one. They are men of the future, and for the present day and for the constricted circles in which they move, the "run of the mill" gives to Georgia a high average of ability, unselfish service and patriotic devotion in the sanctums of the state.

An Inspiring Environment.
In the midst of the depression wrought by a faction-ridden and futile session of the state general assembly, the Georgia Press association has created an environment that helps them to "forget it" for time enough to read their judgments as to where to go.

Eatonton is one of those early towns of Georgia that was pioneered in the era of the occupant Indians and which still holds on to its pioneer spirit by the friendly Creeks. The terrain is a section of the undulating loveliness of middle Georgia. Under the cultivated hands of the Georgia Press association, it is a section of the undulating loveliness of middle Georgia.

The town and its environs have not had time as yet to count. The press association is having a high time, and most stimulating sort of it will be worth while to let the public know that a better possession of the world is in a little later on some of the wise things that are being said by and to these editors.

In passing, however, I cannot repress the thought of how strange it is that the Georgia Press association has not yet realized how responsible they are for "Georgia sentiment" and how almost absolutely its future, for good or ill, rests on the shoulders of the Georgia Press association. But of that I shall write again.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

LABORATORIES.

A little while ago I endeavored to bring to your attention the sad status of the "laboratory" in this country. This, I believe, has been so much abused or misused, at least in this free and "easy" country, that most of us smile now at the fellow who has the temerity to pose as a "professor." In like manner the title of "doctor" threatens to become a synonym for a humbug.

It is a curious thing, or so it seems to me, that the very character of the law, which is supposed to be a safeguard against the quack, is so often a stranger safely assume that a person with the title "doctor" is a member of a learned profession. The word "doctor" is a title, and the word "laboratory" is a title, and the word "laboratory" is a title.

A People of Thrift.
Here the editors find a people whose mouths are not set south at the corners. They have not learned the pusillanimous art of self-deprecation. The gamut of "Dr. Fokes-Bledsoe" isn't in their music books. They are looking for the word "laboratory" in the dictionary, and they are looking for the word "laboratory" in the dictionary.

This country has one conspicuous citizen who has, by sheer dedication of brain and purse to the public welfare, been a heroic leader in the cause of peace that are no less renowned than those of war.

It has been largely due to the foresight of Dr. Hunt and his fellow-citizens who discerned his wisdom, that the word "laboratory" has been a synonym for a humbug. The word "laboratory" has been a synonym for a humbug.

Here is a large and prosperous country, and yet it is a country of small scale. Here is one of the most profitable cotton mills of the famous Cannon company, and yet it is a country of small scale.

The Home of Uncle Remus.
You can't turn around in Eatonton without learning over and over that Joel Chandler Harris, the immortal writer of the "Uncle Remus" stories, was born and spent his boyhood here in this interesting environment. Here he learned all that negro lore that enabled him to write the "Uncle Remus" stories.

Medical skill—shucks, no, that isn't the right term for it, any more—health is something like character. It is a quality that is not inherited, but it is a quality that is not inherited.

Gov. Simpson Protests Stories Of Flood Woe
Baton Rouge, La., August 24.—(AP) Governor O. H. Simpson, of Louisiana, today telegraphed the Chicago Daily News protesting vehemently against a series of articles appearing in that paper. The articles are alleged to have contained facts regarding crime and privation in Louisiana in the wake of the recent flood. The governor branded the articles as utterly without foundation and grossly untrue and shamefully derogatory to Louisiana.

YOUTH LIVED AT HOTEL TWO WEEKS.
Streator, Ill., August 24.—(AP) Harry Hill, 22, sought in connection with the finding of his mother's body buried beneath her home, registered at a Streator hotel on August 12, giving his address as New York and constructing the night clerk that he was not to be disturbed by telephone calls.

Frank Tuley, hotel clerk, told a coroner's jury today at the opening of an inquest into Mrs. Hill's death that Harry Hill had been in the hotel two weeks before her body was discovered.

Alice Sawyer, young Hill's twenty-year-old sweetheart, told the coroner's jury that Harry Hill had been in the hotel two weeks before her body was discovered.

The authorities think the circumstances indicate young Hill, known to several in Streator as the "fish" because of his continued losses at gambling. A warrant charging him with murder was obtained today by William Rabb, county attorney, and Russell Hansen, Hill's movements have been traced by officers until yesterday morning when he dropped out of sight in Chicago after spending the night with a friend.

Because of the several checks that Harry had drawn on his mother's account, bankers had complained to his father, Dr. H. C. Hill, prominent oculist who had lived apart from his wife for several years. The son is reputed to have been a gambler, and when the father investigated the checks, Mrs. Hill's body was taken to Springfield, Ill., for burial.

The coroner's jury went to the Hill home, where they discovered stains on the stairs leading from the kitchen to the basement.

On the wall by the stairs, two small holes were found which jury members believe are bullet marks.

Dr. Hill is expected to testify Friday night in his own defense, awaiting a telephone call from his son. He intimates he is confident his son is innocent.

Williamstown, Mass., August 24.—(AP) Political union of the farmers of the south and west was prophesied and approved of by speakers at the Institute of Politics today.

Economic kinship of the south and west and other points of political sympathy were set forth by George A. Peek, president of the American Council of Agriculture, which represents more than 50 farm organizations; by Clarence Owsley, of Dallas, Texas; by J. A. Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer, a western farm publication, and by Dr. B. C. Kilgore, of North Carolina, chairman of the board of the American Council of Agriculture.

The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill came in for strong support in the conference discussion.

The progress that has been made toward political cooperation of the west and south toward a fair and constructive solution of the problem of the farmer has been more than two years' effort," said Mr. Peek.

Spread rapidly, but was checked at last and quickly healed.

Carrolltown, Pa., Aug. 19.—"One day last year after picking berries my hand began to itch very badly. I scratched it but did not bother to put anything on it. After using these samples the relief was so great, I purchased two full size cakes of Resinol Soap and two jars of Ointment and continued their use until my hand was finally healed. ## Ashley Furnishes Proof That Cave Story Is True

Chattanooga, Tenn., August 24.—(AP) The Chattanooga News says today that Lawrence S. Ashley furnished one of its staff correspondents convincing proof that he actually was imprisoned in Nick-Jack cave last week. O. P. Pile, state mine inspector, had reported to Governor Peay that in his opinion Ashley was not lost in the cave, but that the entire affair was a hoax for publicity purposes.

Ashley took the News correspondent on a tour of the cave and he reported that he was shown a new cave and also was led to the point where Ashley claimed to have dug himself out Sunday morning after having been in the cave a week. The correspondent said he not only found footprints to show proof of Ashley's story, but that they bore the peculiarly fashioned steel cleats of those on Ashley's shoes.

The account said that Ashley furnished "almost positive proof" of his story, and added that he was "very modest in his efforts to furnish proof of his account of the week spent in the cave."

This is a tip for those who do not live in Atlanta! If you live in Atlanta, there's no reason for reading this, unless you want to see what kind of a tip the "Pathfinder" will write while in Canada. (Yes, this one is written in Canada.)

Now, here's the tip! Come to Atlanta! For right up-to-date hotels, theaters, stores, newspapers, supper clubs, Coca-Cola, or even climate, Atlanta will take second place with but few and on general averages is equal to all of them—At least it seems so to me, and I've had to visit all of them east of the Mississippi river, except in New England, once a year for several years.

It may not have been necessary to travel all this territory once a year, but it has been done in order that the Constitution Travel Bureau may be able to give you the best travel information available anywhere in the south. FAIR AND COOLER
THURSDAY OUTLOOK, HURRICANE GONE

Fair skies and lower temperatures will favor Atlanta and its environs today, it was disclosed in the forecast at the local government station.

Predicting a temperature range between 60 and 78 degrees, to be accompanied by moderate winds, the weatherman promised a 24-hour period free of meteorological disturbances.

"Clear skies are scheduled for the day," the official stated. "Gentle breezes and slightly cooler weather" were further assurances of comfort predicted. "The minimum Wednesday was 67 degrees, while the maximum reached was 86, indicating for today a drop of about 6 degrees on both extremes," asserted the forecaster.

Referring to the hurricane that was reported Tuesday to be threatening the coast of Florida, the meteorologist stated that it had moved far to the northward, leaving this section free of any impending danger. Wednesday it was off the coast of New York, he stated.

Moncrief
What's in A NAME?

On some furnaces, the name means little; on others—everything. All manufacturers make many claims as to the efficiency of their furnaces, but the claims mean nothing at all unless, through years of honest service, the manufacturer has established a reputation for backing them up.

When you install a New Improved Moncrief, you know that you are getting a furnace manufactured, installed and guaranteed by a local factory, which through 27 years of painstaking service, has made the name Moncrief worth all the best. Each Moncrief Furnace must share in guarding and protecting the honor of that name.

The New Improved Moncrief is made in best cast iron and steel. It carries a guarantee of complete heating satisfaction.

HUSBAND SLAYS WIFE AND MAN VISITOR

The shooting occurred about eight miles northwest of Marianna. West and Mrs. Yarbrough were about 40 years old and Yarbrough was about 30. "I killed them; that was all there was to do," Deputy Cray said Yarbrough told him, adding that he had warned West he would kill him if West did not "quit coming there."

Yarbrough removed two shells from the shotgun, and surrendered when Cray arrived. He was placed in jail on a charge of murder.

TWO DRY AGENTS HELD FOR MURDER

Miami, August 24.—(AP)—A. H. Malcolm and Edwin L. Hogeboom, United States custom agents, were held for grand jury investigation here today following a hearing on warrants charging them with first degree murder. It was charged that the agents shot and killed Harry Booth, 32, a marine motor mechanic, on August 11, while he and a companion, James Willis, were repairing a boat in Biscayne Bay. Willis was wounded.

The agents were served with the warrants after a coroner's jury returned a verdict that they had fired "unnecessarily" into the boat. They are at liberty on bond of $20,000 each.

Malcolm and Hogeboom entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned before Justice Val C. Cleary. They admitted firing upon the boat, which they said they suspected of having a cargo of liquor, but they testified that Booth was not a member of the crew at the time. Willis testified that Booth was his companion and they attempted to respond to the command of the agents to "move to" when they were fired upon.

R. F. Hunt, assistant state attorney, has indicated that if the agents are indicted the case will be transferred to the United States district court.

The dead are Rosa Johnson and Clinton Johnson, negroes. Those shocked and burned are Misses Mary and Thelma Taylor, daughters of Archie Taylor, overseer on the farm, and four negroes. By means of medical aid doctors revived them after several hours.

They were all in a field picking cotton when an electrical storm came up. They sought shelter from the rain under a large hickory tree and while there the tree was splintered to bits by a bolt of lightning.

RADIO DISCRIMINATION AGAINST SOUTH DENIED

Washington, August 24.—(AP)—Complaints that the south as a whole has been discriminated against with reference to radio broadcasting were met today by an open letter of denial from Chairman Bullard, of the federal radio commission. It is a fact that comparatively few radio stations are now located in southern territory, the chairman said, but the reason for it he attributed to the lack of interest among southerners covering the establishment of stations.

"It must be apparent that the number of stations existing when the commission came into existence was a matter which could not be controlled in any manner whatsoever," the letter said. "The radio commission is not in any manner acting against the interests of any southern states in their desire to have broadcasting stations and the commission cannot accept the statement that the south is being badly treated by the radio commission."

THE GUMPS—I DO NOT CHOOSE TO CHOOSE

They Wouldn't Believe

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.
On the way to Donald Briery's house for lunch, Connie Elmore, Donald's fiancée, tells her friend, Olive Weston, that Donald stands a chance of inheriting half a million from the estate of old Harrowby, a friend of Donald's father. Olive and Connie share a flat in London. Olive is secretly in love with Donald, but stances pious at Connie's good fortune in winning him.

Sandie and Querk, solicitors handling the Harrowby estate, are crooked and plot to cheat Donald Briery of the fortune by having a spurious heir appear whose claim is prior to Donald's. In the midst of the plotting Augustus Briery, Donald's father, presumed to have died when the Titanic sank, calls on Sandie. Querk suggests to Sandie that he invite Briery to Harrowby house and there with the assistance of Querk's uncle, Wade, dispose of Briery.

Connie decides to visit her old nurse, who is now caretaker on Harrowby house. Mrs. Jones is out, but Connie finds the key and lets herself in to wait for her. She hears strange noises in the library and goes to investigate. She sees Mr. Sandie and another man kill Mr. Briery, whom she recognizes from his portrait.

INSTALLMENT X.

GENUINE ASTONISHMENT.

Querk bowed as if he had received and undesired reproof, then strode forward to the bookcase. Nothing could be saved now by making a delay. He would just let the constable and the girl see that he was astonished at finding the body.

As Querk approached the bookcase, Connie turned her back and covered her eyes with her hands. Querk was wholly untroubled. He has covered his own tracks. He must remember to give a gasp of astonishment.

He pulled the lever and the panel slid back—and then Querk gave a wholly genuine gasp of wholly genuine astonishment.

The interior was empty. Instantly Querk recovered himself. He glanced from the averted head and trembling shoulders of the young girl to the constable, tapped his own forehead significantly and then sighed, as if with anxious embarrassment.

He went to the girl and put his hand on her shoulder.

"There, there, my dear Miss Elmore, I'm afraid you have had a shock. I suspected as much when you mentioned Mr. Sandie, because of the purest chance I happen to have come almost straight from his office. But you must not on any account get alarmed about yourself."

Connie shook off his hand, wheeled and faced the empty space left by the panel.

The emotional shock of finding nothing where one has expected to find a dead body is almost as great as finding a dead body where one has expected nothing. For several seconds Connie was utterly unable to speak. The remaining color in her face drained slowly away until ever her lips were white; the pupils of her eyes dilated enormously and her hands hung limply at her side.

At last she tore her eyes away from the empty cavity and turned then upon the constable and then upon the solicitor.

"Mr. Querk," she stammered, "you don't believe a word I have been telling you."

"My dear Miss Elmore, I would stake my life and my honor that you believe implicitly everything you have told me, at this or at any other time. Beyond that, I beg you not to press me."

Connie turned from him to the constable. He was a young man, fair haired and of gigantic build and his eyes rested upon her with admiration under the bewilderment. His youth and his strength gave Connie a passing sense of security.

"You believe me, don't you?" she gasped.

The constable flushed and shifted apologetically.

"Well, I don't know what to make of it, I'm sure, miss," he began. "Of course, as this gentleman said, we know you wouldn't say anything except you believed it true."

"Does the lady stick to her statement, sir?" he asked Querk. "Because if so—well, I don't quite know where we are. See what I mean, miss? If you haven't got a corpse you can't have a murder. That's the law. Anyhow, perhaps we had better search the house to be on the safe side."

"A very good idea, constable," agreed Querk. "Make assurance doubly sure."

They moved back into the hall and the constable stared round him.

"We'd best begin with that door over there," he suggested, pointing to a door at the back of the hall. Querk and Connie followed him, the girl still dazed and at a loss.

The door led into a short passage which again gave on to a corridor running at right angles with it. At one end of it and the right hand half of the house was the bathroom. At the other end, in the left hand half, were the dining room and the reception rooms which could also be approached from the central hall. In the middle of the passage a door led out into the small garden, behind which lay the garage yard and the garages themselves. Into the yard ran Connie, the constable and Querk at her heels.

"Look!" she cried, pointing to the ground in front of the massive red gates which opened out into a back street.

"There's the marks of wheels here—two lots," said the constable, and glanced hopefully at Connie as if he had made a genuine effort to please her.

"Are you sure they are—or two lots, constable?" asked Querk. "Are you sure they are not the tracks of a single car that came into the yard and then backed out?"

"Come to think of it, sir, that's just what it is," agreed the constable, and proceeded to prove to Querk that he must be right.

"Then I am afraid that will hardly help us," said Querk sadly. "Pog, I came here this morning myself in my car. Those must be my wheel tracks or they would be crossed with others. Of course you can settle the matter later by measuring wheels and taking an impression of the tires, but in the meantime you can take it from me that they are mine."

The offer was a safe one since he had a car of the same make as Sandie's. The constable seemed singularly disinclined to take measurement.

"Well—I'd better get on with searching the house, for the sake of the report I shall have to make," he remarked.

"Oh, what is the good of searching?" sobbed Connie, breaking down suddenly. "You won't find anything now! And I know you don't expect to find anything." She controlled herself by a great effort and added, "I shall go straight to the nearest police station and—make them listen to me!"

"Allow me to accompany you, my dear Miss Elmore," purred Querk, and hurried after her as she dashed away. Connie tried to tell him that she did not want him, but he would not be rebuffed. When he hailed a taxi, helped her in and sat beside her, then told the driver to take them to the district police station, she was almost glad of his presence.

In that moment of horror and panic when she had rushed from the house, her one fear had been that she might fail to reach the police before the men would hear and stop her. That any one could possibly doubt her information had never crossed her mind. For a moment bewilderment was uppermost. Events had so fallen out that it had been possible for the constable on the one hand and Mr. Querk on the other to entertain grave doubts.

"Why—why don't you believe me, Mr. Querk?" she implored him.

"Be a little generous, Miss Elmore," answered Querk. "Consider my position. You tell me that you have just seen a murder committed by a man with whom I am frequently associated in professional life; for whom I have, besides, the greatest respect. Add to that fact that I was with him some half an hour or so before I met you."

"But why should I say he has done such a dreadful thing if he has not?" Tears threatened again and Connie gazed out of the window, trying to steady herself.

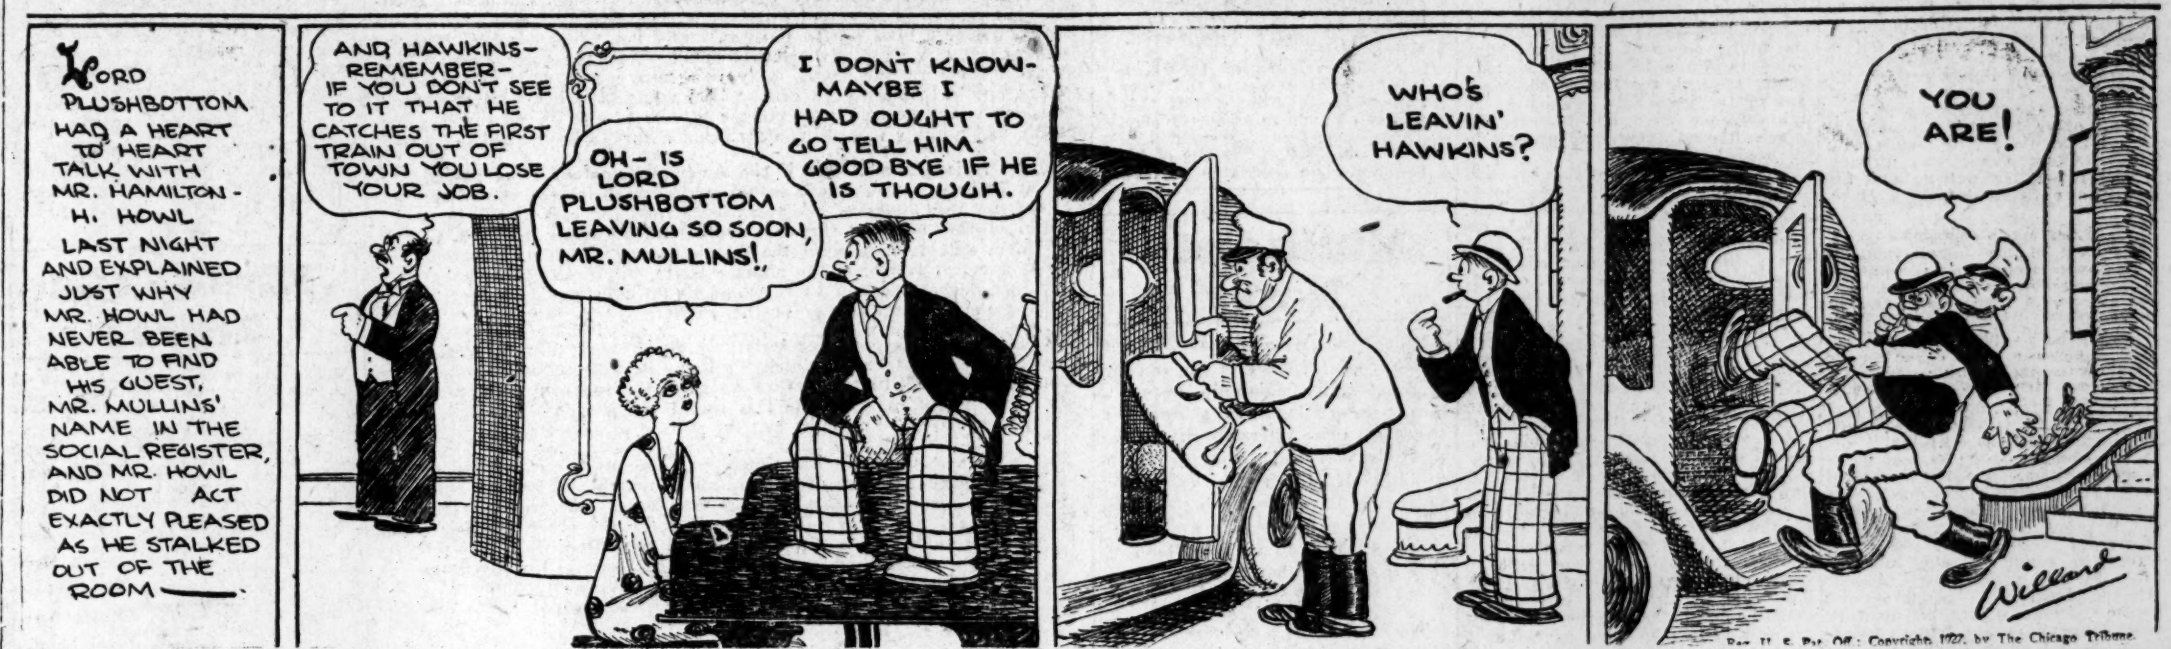

"I might counter that by asking what possible profit it could be to Mr. Sandie to—ah—murder Mr. Briery? But then—I ask nothing of the kind. Please understand, my dear young lady, that I keep an absolutely open mind, hear both sides of any given question, and have always been my motto. But there, I simply ask you to be a little generous, Miss Elmore. Suspend judgment."

Connie bit her lip and fell silent. She still hoped that at the police station, at least, there would be someone whom she could convince.

A Southern Heritage

SILVER GOBLETS are a Southern institution. They became popular here in the ante-bellum days, and their beauty and practicality have made them a fixed habit. Atlanta, possibly, has more Silver Goblets than any other American city. And many of them, purchased from us a quarter of a century ago, are still giving pleasure and service.

But there are comfortable old chairs for you to sink into—and it doesn't matter if you spill ashes on the floor. And the folks who live there are always glad to see you. They welcome you with their own cheery graciousness—and no matter when you drop in, they always offer you a welcome cup of RIDGWAYS deliciously fragrant tea to cheer and refresh you.

MRS. ANDREWS DIES AT EASTMAN

Eastman, Ga., August 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. W. P. Andrews, who was shot and seriously wounded when her husband was instantly killed on a lonely road near Milan on July 23, died this afternoon. She had been confined to her bed in the Eastman hospital ever since her husband was shot dead and she was also shot and left for dead.

Wilbur Galloway, a negro, and two other negroes are in the Bibb county jail at Macon, charged with the crime. One of the negroes, officers say, has confessed, claiming that Galloway fired the shot.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews were attacked late at night when they were en route to Abbeville from Eastman to see sick relatives. They apparently lost the way and inquired of some negroes the right direction at Milan. The negroes agreed to show them the right road and one of the negroes, while seated on the back seat of the automobile, fired the shot that instantly killed Andrews.

Mrs. Andrews was also shot through the mouth, the ball penetrating the tongue and breaking the jawbone and lodging in the back of her neck. An operation was performed and the bullet removed but her condition became such that blood transfusion was necessary.

For a while her condition seemed satisfactory except that the shock had affected her mind. She developed acute appendicitis yesterday and an operation was performed last night in a further effort to save her life.

"From the American viewpoint we are not democratic," Trotsky told the delegation of American labor union officials, including Russian conditions.

"But from our viewpoint the United States is not democratic."

"You have a dictatorship concentrated in capitalists, under cover of the outward forms of political democracy."

"Americans complain that we violate freedom because we prohibit public meetings. In that respect we are somewhat similar to the real fathers of American liberty."

Mrs. Rosenblum was driving the car when she saw a caterpillar climbing up her right leg. She screamed and sought to brush the caterpillar off, leaving the car unguided, and it collided with an electric light pole. The steering wheel prevented her being thrown out, but Mrs. Calley, riding beside her, was thrown to the pavement and injured. In the excitement of the smash-up the caterpillar escaped.

AS BRITISH TRAIN
JUMPS OFF TRACK

London, August 24.—(P)—Eleven passengers on a packed holiday southern railway train perished this evening when the engine and all the coaches jumped the tracks 20 miles southeast of London. Twenty others were seriously injured, and many less severely injured. There is no official explanation of the disaster, but it is believed that the recent heavy rain softened the rail bed, causing the rails to spread. The accident occurred between Dutton Green and Seven Oaks. Kent, half an hour after the train had left London, proceeding to Deal.

While traveling at high speed, the train began to rock, then left the rails. The engine and its train of coaches were wrecked and three coaches were badly wrecked.

Three bodies identified late tonight were those of Englishmen.

SOUTH'S COTTON GINS
WORTH $200,000,000

Washington, August 24.—(P)—Cotton ginning plants in the United States represent an investment probably in excess of $200,000,000, the department of agriculture estimates after a study of practices and costs of the cotton gin operation. Last year the United States produced 11,000,000,000, or about $6 a bale, for ginning and wrapping the 1925 crop. Ginning facilities are now available sufficient to gin the entire crop in 30 days.

The cotton-ginning business, with large gin plants, has been developed to a greater extent in the southwest than in some other sections of the country, the department says. Each active ginning plant turned out a yearly average of 642 bales of cotton from 1914 to 1925, inclusive, whereas each active plant in Texas averaged 963 bales.

In a study of north-central Texas it was found that plants with a volume of 1,000 to 1,500 bales had an average cost of $6,471 a bale in 1924-1925, whereas plants handling from 1,500 to 3,500 bales averaged $4,58. An average total profit of 8.88 per cent of the capital invested, in addition to an allowance of 6 per cent for interest on the investment, was made by 53 plants. Eleven plants out of 66 failed to make a 6 per cent return on capital.

New York, August 24.—A caterpillar was the cause of an automobile accident in Brooklyn today, in which the car of Mrs. Ella Rosenblum, of Flat Bush, was wrecked and the left arm of Agnes Calley, 40, of Ocean avenue, was fractured.

Mrs. Rosenblum was driving the car when she saw a caterpillar climbing up her right leg. She screamed and sought to brush the caterpillar off, leaving the car unguided, and it collided with an electric light pole. The steering wheel prevented her being thrown out, but Mrs. Calley, riding beside her, was thrown to the pavement and injured. In the excitement of the smash-up the caterpillar escaped.

11 KILLED, 20 HURT
AS BRITISH TRAIN
JUMPS OFF TRACK

London, August 24.—(P)—Eleven passengers on a packed holiday southern railway train perished this evening when the engine and all the coaches jumped the tracks 20 miles southeast of London. Twenty others were seriously injured, and many less severely injured. There is no official explanation of the disaster, but it is believed that the recent heavy rain softened the rail bed, causing the rails to spread. The accident occurred between Dutton Green and Seven Oaks. Kent, half an hour after the train had left London, proceeding to Deal.

While traveling at high speed, the train began to rock, then left the rails. The engine and its train of coaches were wrecked and three coaches were badly wrecked.

Three bodies identified late tonight were those of Englishmen.

SOUTH'S COTTON GINS
WORTH $200,000,000

Washington, August 24.—(P)—Cotton ginning plants in the United States represent an investment probably in excess of $200,000,000, the department of agriculture estimates after a study of practices and costs of the cotton gin operation. Last year the United States produced 11,000,000,000, or about $6 a bale, for ginning and wrapping the 1925 crop. Ginning facilities are now available sufficient to gin the entire crop in 30 days.

The cotton-ginning business, with large gin plants, has been developed to a greater extent in the southwest than in some other sections of the country, the department says. Each active ginning plant turned out a yearly average of 642 bales of cotton from 1914 to 1925, inclusive, whereas each active plant in Texas averaged 963 bales.
